

About The Conference

The 8th Annual California Statewide Medical & Health Disaster Management Conference 2005 is an educational activity designed to train government and healthcare emergency management planners in the administration of healthcare's three Rs – Resources, Response and Recovery– and their best use to the benefit of patients and personnel through informative and interactive presentations.

This year's series of one-day conferences offers attendees the opportunity to learn about the three Rs of healthcare. The Conference will focus on how best to manage the three Rs, the impact they have on the medical and health infrastructure and their best use for the advantage of healthcare in general. This year's conference will again prepare participants for the November 17, 2005 California Statewide Medical & Health Disaster Exercise.

The Objectives

- At the completion of this activity, the participants will be able to:
- Describe the importance of preparing healthcare organizations and personnel for emergencies.
  - Discuss the challenges facing California in terms of healthcare systems readiness for a disaster or other hazardous incident.
  - Identify available government and other resources as well as those that are still needed.
  - Discuss recent examples of real-life healthcare system responses to emergencies and their relevance to California.

Supporting Organizations
